Split vote a 'no' to Obama's immigration plans

The 4-4 tie keeps in place a lower court ruling and effectively kills Obama's reform program

BY MARK SHERMAN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A short-handed and deeply divided Supreme Court deadlocked Thursday on President Obama's immigration plan to help millions living in the United States illegally, effectively killing the plan for the rest of his presidency and raising the stakes even further for the November elections. The hotly debated direction of America's national immigration policy, as well as the balance of power on the high court, now will be determined in large part by the presidential and congressional elections. Immigration and the court vacancy created by Justice Antonin Scalia's death in February already were featuring in the campaign.

Scalia's vote most likely would have meant an outright ruling against Obama's immigration expansion rather than the 4-4 tie, a much more significant defeat for the president and immigrant advocates.

Democrat Hillary Clinton declared that as president she would work to restore the programs and go further. Republican Donald Trump said he would make sure Obama's "unconstitutional actions" never came back. The tie is not likely to lead to an increase in deportations since the president retains ample discretion to decide whom to deport. But the ruling stymies his effort to bring people "out from the shadows" by giving them the right to work legally in the United States.

One of the Obama programs would have protected the parents of children who are in the country legally. The other was an expansion of a program that benefits people who were brought to the United States as children. Obama decided to move forward on his own after Republicans won control of the Senate in 2014 and the chances for an immigration overhaul, already remote, were further damaged.

Obama said Thursday's impasse "takes us further from the country we aspire to be."

The candidates vying to replace him split as plainly as the justices.

Clinton, the presumptive Democratic nominee, said that if she is elected she will defend the Obama programs "and do everything possible under the law to go further to protect families."

Republican Trump, on the other hand, said the court outcome "blocked one of the most unconstitutional actions ever undertaken by a president" and the split decision "makes clear what's at stake in November."

And the people directly affected?

Mexican immigrant Cristina Molina of New York City said she was frustrated and upset.

"I feel like I'm in limbo," Molina, 48, said through an interpreter.

She has lived in the United States for 23 years and said she would have been eligible for one of the programs Obama announced in 2014.

A Supreme Court that sets no national precedent but leaves in place a ruling by a lower court. The justices issued a one-sentence opinion, with no further comment.

A full nine-justice court agreed to hear the case in January, but by the time of the arguments in late April, Scalia had died. That left eight justices to decide the case, and the court presumably split along liberal-conservative lines, although no breakdown was announced.

Plaintiffs, §

v. §

Case No. 1:16-cv-119

BARACK HUSSEIN OBAMA, et al., §
Defendants. §ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

The Court is in receipt of Plaintiffs' complaint, which was filed by James Aggrey-Kweggyir Arunga (hereinafter "Mr. Arunga") on June 10, 2016.¹ On the face of the complaint, multiple grounds could exist for dismissal under Rule 12(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for failing to comply with Rule 8 and 9 of the same. For example, Plaintiffs fail to articulate a justiciable claim in the complaint. Further, there exists no reason to believe that the Court has subject matter or personal jurisdiction to entertain the allegations contained within the complaint. Plaintiffs are hereby given NOTICE that the Court has identified issues fatal to the cause of action and are ORDERED to show cause within 21 days as to why the complaint should not be dismissed and summons be issued.

Signed on this 14th day of June, 2016.

 Ignacio Torteya, III
 United States Magistrate Judge

¹ The complaint includes multiple government entity plaintiffs whom are reportedly represented by Mr. Arunga. Mr. Arunga seemingly is neither a lawyer nor affiliated with the government in any capacity. The Court advises Mr. Arunga that impersonating an officer or employee of the United States government, as well as the unauthorized practice of law, are punishable offenses.
